

Challenge: Read a book recommended by your mom or dad. If you are in contact with your parents, the book suggestion from them is a phone call away. If your parents are not available to answer this question, think about the books your parents have read. Was there one book or an author they read and re-read over the years? If you still can't come up with a title, it's OK to reference your parents' favorite TV show and find a book modeled on that show.
